Free General Health Camp

On 4th March 2017, Maternal and Child Health Project (MCHP) in collaboration with Lamjung District Community Hospital (LDCH) organised a one-day free Reproductive Health Camp in Bhorletar a rural village municipality of Lamjung. Total 274 people were treated (162 female and 112 male).

Bhorletar is located in the western part of Lamjung. The villagers lack access to quality health services due to low economic status, difficult geographical territory, lack of transportation facilities, lack of awareness, and long distance to the hospital. The free reproductive and general health camp was held mainly to address health problems especially for the women and children in Bhorletar. The camp was further able to benefit people from surrounding villages like Ramgha, like Bhorletar the people from Ramgha face similar challenges on gaining health care services.

During the camp, eye problem, dental infection, malnutrition, Pelvic Inflammatory Disease (PID), uterine prolapsed, chest infection, gastritis, and injuries cases were clinically diagnosed. Additionally, antenatal check up, teeth extraction, wound I/D and dressing services were also given. The camp also encouraged good relation with local clubs. There was active participation of the local clubs, teachers, Female Community Health Volunteer, health worker and school teachers.
